WHERE DOES ART COME FROM?

And what makes it powerful enough to make an impact on our lives? The concept of art as a medium for progress is as storied as time itself. Time and again art has proven it is one of the most powerful engines for change that we have, capable of telling stories and conveying meaning in a way that words alone simply cannot.

The impetus behind great works of art all starts somewhere, and the brand-new opera Art is a Verb looks to explore just that. A celebration of the beauty of music and its power to change the world, Art is a Verb is organized into five sections: the introduction of the theme, the story of each of the artist’s journey to opera, a response to the murder of George Floyd, a look at the future of opera, and finally a return to the theme of art as a means for change.

“The piece was created in collaboration with the vocalists via group conversations, one-on-one conversations and email,” said Harrison Rivers, the librettist of the piece. “It felt important to capture their voices, their individual stories and experiences, as well as showcase their talents.”

The piece features four vocalists: tenor Andres Acosta, baritone Sidney Outlaw, soprano Karen Slack, and baritone Andrew Wilkowske. Each singer chose a song that is meaningful to them to include in the libretto alongside the original music composed by B.E. Boykin.

Art is a Verb highlights the ways in which art like opera can drive change forward, with a particular focus on the effects the murder of George Floyd has had on the Black community and the need for equitable change around the country.

“I wasn’t even thinking about singing,” Karen Slack said. “Singing was the last thing on my mind. And then George Floyd was murdered...and suddenly singing was the only thing I could think to do.”

This piece comes at a time when the broader opera community continues to have conversations around representation in the stories told and the people who are included onstage.

“We need to be IN the community and OF the community,” Sidney Outlaw said. “If you want your audience to be engaged, then you have to tell their stories on your stage.”

“Art is a home, and we need to make it a better home for artists in general and particularly artists of color,” added director Lily Tung Crystal. “Ultimately art is a microcosm for what we should be fighting for in society at large.”

Did you know? This drink is named after Shirley Graham Du Bois, who, in 1932, was the first Black woman (that we know of) to have her opera, Tom-Tom, performed for an audience.

The Tom-Tom Collins

Ingredients:
- 2 oz. gin (we like Old Tom or London Dry)
- 1 oz. lemon juice
- ½ oz. simple syrup
- Soda water, to top
- Lemon wedge, for garnish
- Cocktail cherry, for garnish

Instructions:
1. Shake gin, syrup, and juice with ice until chilled, about 15 seconds.
2. Strain into an ice-filled highball glass.
3. Top with soda water and garnish with lemon wheel/wedge and cherry.

Queen of the Night Sour

Did you know? This cocktail is named after one of Mozart’s—and maybe even opera’s—most famous characters in The Magic Flute.

Ingredients:
- ¼ oz. lemon juice
- ¼ oz. maple syrup or simple syrup
- 2 oz. bourbon whiskey
- Cherry or orange, for garnish

Instructions:
1. Combine bourbon, lemon juice, and simple syrup in cocktail shaker.
2. Fill shaker with ice, cover, and shake vigorously until outside of shaker is very cold (about 20 seconds).
3. Strain cocktail through a Hawthorne strainer or a slotted spoon into an old-fashioned or rocks glass filled with ice.
4. Garnish with orange wheel and cherry.

Onegin Mocktail (Moscow Mule)

Did you know? This mocktail is named after Tchaikovsky’s 1879 opera, Eugene Onegin.

Ingredients:
- ½ cup ginger beer (non-alcoholic)
- 3 tbsp. lime juice
- 3 tbsp. club soda
- Lime wedge, for garnish

Instructions:
1. Mix ingredients in a copper mug ¾ full of crushed ice.
2. Stir together.
3. Garnish with lime wedge.

Bitten By Love Sweet Treat

Needed:
- 1 pint raspberries
- 1 bag chocolate chip morsels

Instructions:
1. Wash raspberries and set aside to air dry.
2. Open your bag of chocolate chips.
3. Simply stuff the open raspberries one by one with a chocolate chip and serve in a fun bowl to dress up the spread.

Simple Charcuterie Board

Missing your favorite happy hour charcuterie board? Time to empty your cupboard and become an artist! No cooking required.

Instructions:
1. Grab a large platter or cutting board to assemble your favorite treats.
2. Cut up meats and cheeses and refrigerate as you assemble other ingredients.
3. Anything goes—grab your favorite crisps, crackers, and breadsticks that are longing for the day they see a large party again.
4. Open the refrigerator and pull out any accoutrements—olives, pickles, carrots, and celery are great additions.
5. Add color through various fresh or dried fruit (psst, you can add your Bitten By Love Raspberry Chocolate Bites).
6. Take a look online for pattern inspirations!
